

Important information regarding COVID-19.

As news on the Coronavirus (COVID-19) continues to develop, we wanted to reassure you that the team at BullsEye is prepared and ready. It is critical to us that you have the peace of mind that you will continue to experience best-in-class services from us.

The redundancy of our platforms as well as disaster recovery tests clearly show that we are fully prepared for events such as this. Further, our technology also supports our employees working remotely while still servicing customers.

Our employees utilize the same tools and technology we offer to our clients to maintain business continuity and provide full business functionality for remote workers. If circumstances call for all of our employees to work remotely on a temporary basis, we expect to maintain the exact same level of service and support, without any change to you.

Hello,

I am reaching out this morning to touch base with you as we adapt to the rapid changes in our personal and work lives resulting from the Coronavirus (COVID-19).

BullsEye maintains our commitment to serve you. Using our internal technology and tools, BullsEye transitioned our entire operation to function virtually beginning March 13, 2020.

To help our clients quickly respond to the demand for remote capabilities for your employees, BullsEye developed and released a Remote Worker Kit \(a Unified Communications product\), that we are offering at no charge to our clients and prospects for 60 days.

We understand that your communications are critical now more than ever, and that staying connected has never been more important. I wanted to assure you during this uncertain time that our business is financially stable. BullsEye does not carry any debt, and we have the ability to utilize our cash assets for business continuity. BullsEye is very well positioned to support you and your business through these unparalleled challenges.

Our team continues to support our clients, and we are standing by to help—please call 877-638-2855 if you have any questions. We value each one of our clients and we appreciate your business and loyalty. BullsEye is in this for the long term, and we are here to help you navigate this difficult and uncertain time.

Take care and stay safe,

Tom Tisko
